Thanks for your help.

Besides the listed items below that you plan to ship, Mrs. Esmond would like her pair of white shoes with wood bottoms sent back to her.

They do not want the clothes returned.

Thanks very much.

Jim.

Subject: Esmond Family Personal Belongings

Mr. Maron:

As a reminder for what we were able to recover from the condominium today, we will be shipping the following to you via Federal Express:

- Two Mac Book computers and their associated chargers
- One I-phone with charger
- All four passports
- Beats earbuds

Although methyl bromide should not adhere to these items, we have taken the added precaution of wiping them clean before packaging.

With respect to Mrs. Esmond's wedding ring; we have searched but not found it. We can search further if needed; please let us know if she has it as we would love to have the honor of ensuring its safe return if needed.

There is one outstanding item with respect to the personal belongings that we forgot to discuss. Much of the family's clothing is still in the condominium unit. The pesticide experts have informed us that since methyl bromide is a gas, dissipates rapidly, and does not normally adhere to most items, ventilation is the answer to ensuring that no methyl bromide remains. We are currently ventilating the rooms and the personal items and will complete that before releasing these items to you. As a conservative precaution, the clothes can be laundered before using.

Please let us know if the family would like the remaining items returned as we can arrange for their laundering and return shipment before we leave the island. I have discussed this issue with David Adams, the property manager from Sea Glass, and he has agreed to handle the laundering and shipment if needed.

Best regards,

Cris D'Onofrio
